From 2017, Doordarshan has been repeating programmes from its library and does not telecast any new serial.. In the late 1997, DD National started airing Mukesh Khanna's Shaktimaan, which was the blockbuster TV serial in Indian history.. To support the success of Shanti, many other shows like Swabhimaan, Farz, and Yug were introduced and all of them were praised.. It also launched a campaign for its afternoon slots, DD Dophar Aapke Ghar, by airing serials like Amrita, Anudamini, Aisa Prem Kahan, and Chupau Kaise Laaga Chunari Me Daag.. In 1993, Doordarshan launched its second channel for the metro/urban audience, DD Metro, then popularly known as DD-2 With the telecast of popular TV shows like Chandrakanta, Alif Laila, Tehkikaat, Chitrahaar, Reporter, Udaan, Byomkesh Bakshi, Farmaan, Katha Sagar, Neem Ka Ped and Chanakya, DD National retained viewers, but Doordarshan Board focused more on its DD Metro Channel, which was aimed to compete with Zee TV.. In 2005, Hawayein starring Ravi Kishan and Malini Kapoor became one of the most popular shows and also won a title of Best TV Serial of the Year at the ITA Awards.. The idea was revived when the Janata Dal took office in 1989 The following governments showed no interest in autonomy despite making politically correct noises about autonomy.. Although many production houses like Balaji Telefilms and Saai Baba Telefilms had won slots for airing their programs, it could not be commenced as the policy was reported for review.. 2010 to present [edit] At prime time, DD was still not able to compete with private channels, and it also started losing its peak position in afternoon slots to re-runs on other channels.. In the meantime, DD Metro became one of the popular destinations of TV viewers with its shows like Junoon, Superhit Muquabala, and Azanabi.. In 1997, Prasar Bharati, the parent body of Doordarshan, was formed While private channels like Zee TV, STAR Plus and Sony TV started airing high budget TV serials from top production houses, DD National was still doing the best in afternoon slots with Kasam, Itihaas, Agni, Aprajita, Aurat, Ardhangini, Sanjog, Deewar, Aane Wala Pal, Waqt Ki Raftaar and other programs.. Initially, these shows did better, but later, as TRP fell in 2016, Prasar Bharati decided to go for a slot sale policy and invited bids from makers for its 7 PM to 11 PM slot.. This telecaster was named 'DD1' and started regular transmission In 1984, DD1 started telecast of sponsored TV serials, which were produced by veteran filmmakers.. In this period, DD introduced many popular serials like Air Hostess, Wo Huye Na hamare, Kyunki Jeena Isi Ka Naam Hai, Tum Dena Sath Mera, Hari Mirchi lal Mirchi, Soni Mahiwaal, Wheel Smart Shrimati, Krazzy Kiya Re, Chandramukhi, Jo Kahunga Sach Kahunga, Tahreer Munshi Premchand Ki, and Kashmkash Zindagi Ki.. It is the flagship channel of Doordarshan, India's public service broadcaster, and the most widely available terrestrial television channel in India.. In 2000, after tasting success with India's Most Wanted, Jasoos Vijay and Suraag in prime time, Prasar Bharati decided to revamp both channels, and many new serials were introduced on DD National, but very few of them were successful because of a limited prime time slots of 9 to 10:30, compared to 8 to 11 for other channels.. In 2012, DD started airing Ekta Kapoor's Pavitra Bandhan, Sanjay Leela Bhansali's Saraswatichandra and a few other serials.. Even though in those days, cable and satellite channels were not easily available, DD1 was still ruling the chart, as it was the only channel available terrestrially.. Afternoon slots in 2016 aired serials like Krantijyoti Savitribai Phule, U-turn, and Munidhar.. [1] History 2 Prasar Bharati Board History [edit] 1959 to 1982: Beginning [edit] On 15 September 1959, at the studio of All India Radio, Delhi, the very first TV channel in India started an experimental telecast with a small transmitter and a makeshift studio.. 1982 to 1992: Golden Years[edit]On 15 August 1982, Doordarshan introduced a national telecast service from its own TV studio in Mandi House, New Delhi.. In 2002, DD offered its time slots to popular filmmakers and got some popular shows of the time.. However, the strategy was not enough for its revival In late 2016, the slot sale policy of DD was put on hold by the government. e10c415e6f
